

Bomber Squadron

Men Who Flew with XV Squadron

Martyn R. Ford Jones

Based on personal interviews, Bomber Command aircrews who served with XV Squadron reveal the horrors of operations over Nazi Germany

- Previously unpublished personal diaries reveal the day-to-day life of British aircrews during the Second World War, based on their personal diaries, which were written at the time
- Revisiting a revised look at a popular out of print publication with fresh material such as new characters and chapters
- Historically rich in detail with previously unpublished photographs of many of the characters involved
- A welcome return of an updated version of a book first published over thirty years

Martyn R. Ford-Jones is the acknowledged historian to No. XV Squadron, Royal Air Force, and to No. 622 Squadron, Royal Auxiliary Air Force. Because of his interest in the RAF, he has become an established author and researcher. Born and raised in London, Ford-Jones lives in Wiltshire with his wife Valerie, to whom he has been married for over fifty years. Ford-Jones' main topics of interest, apart from the RAF and the Second World War, are reading, travelling, solving crosswords and Formula 1 motor racing. His first book for Fonthill Media was A Royal Engineer at War 1940-1945: From Crossing the Desert to Crossing the Rhine (2017).
